September Specials—Angel Messages and Gifts

Celebrating International Angel Day

After September 11, 2001, angel therapist, author, teacher and clairvoyant Doreen Virtue asked God and the angels for guidance on how to help the world heal. The result was International Angel Day—a day dedicated to connecting to the Divine and spreading peace on earth, one person at a time.

Angel events are held around the globe to help us connect to God and the angels. You don't have to have any experience to participate, and if you can't make it to a formal group event, celebrate on your own by taking a minute to retreat to a peaceful place of solitude and calling on your angels. Ask them to help you experience peace and surrender any issues to them which are causing you to experience unbalance and lower vibrating emotions such as guilt and fear.

Another powerful and easy way to participate in International Angel Day (or any day) is to pray. The angels say that worry is a form of prayer and does not result in helpful outcomes. It is more productive to ask for a blessed outcome for everyone's highest purpose and benefit. Whether you choose to participate in an angel class, event or individual prayer session, celebrate our beloved angels this September 8—International Angel Day!

Debunking Angel Myths

Angels are only available to those of a specific religion of which you are not a member.

Totally and completely false. Divine help is available to all who ask for it. The angels do not check a "member list" before helping.

I don't have any angels.

All souls have angels. They surround you and help as much as you allow.

Angels are too busy, have more important people to help, than to be bothered with your petty problems.

The angels always remind us that they are not limited by our human limitations or egos. They are the hands of God and can be with as many souls as needed. All souls are equal and deserving of their help, and any problem which interferes with your connection to Source and peace is worthy of their assistance.

Angels yell, scold or pass judgments.

Some are afraid to hear from their guardian angels as they expect to hear criticism or other unkind negativity. This is not possible as the angels do not have egos and don't judge us. They always see our true intentions and love us conditionally just as the Creator does.

It is wrong or evil to communicate with anyone other than God.

The angels assure us their roles are messengers, servants and vessels of Divine light and creation. Deceased souls choose to transition to the light. Evil or wrong cannot exist in the light so it is impossible that they be evil or hurtful in any way. The angels say this myth is the "I am not worthy" belief cloaked in a guilt inducing block to allowing love, joy and peace—exactly the emotions our Creator wishes us to experience.
