Send Love For International Angel Day-7/7/16

After September 11, 2001, angel therapist, author, teacher and clairvoyant Doreen Virtue asked God and the angels for guidance on how to help the world heal. The result was International Angel Day—a day dedicated to connecting to the Divine and spreading peace on earth, one person at a time.

Angel events are held around the globe to help us connect to God and the angels on International Angel Day.

The angels ask that we all participate this year with a global prayer for peace. We normally send our love, light and prayers to victims of acts of violence and fear. The angels ask you to send your light into the dark. Send it to the souls who know nothing but fear and darkness and who have closed themselves to the light. See them opening their hearts to new ways of positivity, faith and unity for all living creatures. The angels ask that we blast the dark with our powerful light and love.

The angels use an analogy to demonstrate how dark and light exists. Think of a town at night. Not every light needs to be on in order for there to be light. Some “houses” will be brightly lit; while others will remain dark. As long as enough lights are on, there will be light. They say this works with peace.

Prayer is a powerful and easy way to make a difference. Our collective prayers create miracles. Our collective worry generates negativity. Let’s celebrate our beloved angels and peace on earth this September 7—International Angel Day!
